AXIS TROOPS REPORTED EVACUATING NORTH AFRICAN BATTLEGROUND UNDER COVER OF DARKNESS; RING TIGHTENING

Reports Unconfirmed, But Believed To Be Partially True—Contingents of Enemy Troops Arriving in Early Morning Hours at Ports in Western Sicily

(By International News Service)

As the battle for Tunisia moved inexorably toward its denouement today, with British, French and American forces tightening their ring of steel around the enemy, reports reaching London said that Axis troops have already been evacuating the North African battleground under cover of darkness.

These reports, coming from various sources on Continental Europe, were unconfirmed officially, but there was some reason for believing they may be at least partially true.

If Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, or whoever is in charge of the Axis' last stand in Tunisia, is convinced of the hopelessness of his plight, he may attempt to salvage some of his forces rather than risk

Snow Flurries Delays Spring Trying Hard To Arrive

"Spring is here"—with below freezing temperatures, snow, and gusty winds.

The sun, which appeared strong in the early morning hours, was soon hidden behind snow clouds, and the flurries of snow throughout the morning appeared to be a prelude to the below-freezing temperatures promised for tonight.

The weatherman's prediction today reads: "Moderately cold today with strong winds; colder tonight with below freezing temperatures;" and individuals who have been pleased at the lateness of Palm Sunday and Easter are now disturbed over the possibility that even lateness of these dates in April may not even bring seasonableness for new spring wardrobes.

VICTORY GARDENERS WARNED TO BE ON LOOKOUT FOR CERTAIN PESTS WHICH ARE SURE TO BE ENCOUNTERED DURING GROWING SEASON

Victory Gardeners are warned to be on the lookout for certain pests which are fairly certain to be encountered.

The State Department of Agriculture today urged Victory Gardeners to give careful consideration to the control of these pests.

"If control measures are not available where they are needed, gardening efforts will go for nothing," the Department's Bureau of Plant Industry stated.

"The first offender will likely be the cutworms. These worms are rather plump creatures about an inch or so long and usually dark brown in color. They are not active in the day, but are quite likely to cut off tomato, cabbage and other plants the first night after they are transplanted into the garden.

The damage may continue for some time, so the control measure must be applied at once. The plants may be protected by placing a paper cylinder around them. The paper should be of a quality sufficiently stiff to remain upright after being wet. It should extend four or five inches above the soil and about half this distance into the soil.

"In preparing the garden, it is advised that a constant look-out be maintained for these worms which should be destroyed on sight. There is a poison bait which may be successfully used. It is made by mixing one quart of wheat bran and one teaspoonful of Paris Green well together while dry, and then making the mixture into a thick mash with one-fourth an orange finely cut, three teaspoonfuls of molasses and a little water. Roll into pills about the size of small grains of corn and place a few under numerous small boards placed about the garden. It must be remembered this is a poisonous mixture and must be kept from irresponsible persons and livestock. Make up just enough of the material for immediate use.

"Tomato plants and radishes are likely to be damaged early in the season by flea beetles. These are the small black beetles, and get their common name from their jumping habits. A light dusting with cryolite offers protection. Cryolite dust may be used later for the protection of bean plants from the bean beetle. There should not be any time on the plants before cryolite is applied. The mixture with lime will destroy the plants. Mix cryolite with sulphur or talc, six parts by weight of the cryolite to four of the sulphur or talc. Rotten dusts are also effective in the control of flea beetles. These dusts are available for victory gardens.

"It is something of a fight to grow a good vegetable garden. It will be necessary to put a lot of personal effort into the garden if satisfactory results are to be obtained."

With single or twin births being the usual thing in goat families, the quintuplets are attracting much attention.

New Time Schedule Is Effective for School

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 14—A new time schedule went into operation at Doylestown High School on Monday in order to make it possible for the 100 or more boys and girls that are now working in all kinds of jobs.

Under the new schedule the noon hour starts at 11:50 instead of 12 o'clock, and the noon hour ends at 12:50 instead of one o'clock. This is done by taking a few minutes off some of the classes, and it enables those who work to get out at 2:20 p. m. instead of 3:30 p. m.

The number of hours served by members of the faculty is just the same. More and more students from the nine grade up are joining the "working forces" every day. J. Leonard Halderman, supervising principal, says.

British Unleash Assault Against Axis' Line in North Africa

Allied Headquarters in North Africa—Britain's powerful Eighth Army today unleashed an assault against the newly-established Axis fortified line between Enfidaville, on the east coast of Tunisia north of Sousse, and hill positions to the west.

The Eighth Army re-established contact with rear-guard forces of the battered German Afrika Korps as Allied armies all along the shortening Axis bridgehead tightened their lines around German and Italian troops trapped in northeast Tunisia.

French forces driving eastward to the sea from Ousseitia continued their advance to the left of the Eighth Army while the British First Army smashed its way forward between Medjel-el-Bab and Munchar, west of Tunis.

Forward troops of the Eighth Army continued the advance to the north and made contact with enemy prepared positions between Enfidaville and the Djebel Bou Hadjar, a communique said.

Admit Japan Has "Complete Control" of Sea Lanes in The Western Pacific

United Nations Headquarters in Australia—Admission that Japan has "complete control" of the sea lanes in the western Pacific and the outer approaches toward Australia was made today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur. But, he added in his first "on the record" strategic review since assuming command of Allied forces in the southwest Pacific, land-based aviation skillfully coordinated with swift-striking ground task forces, will make possible "bold massive strokes" to defeat the enemy.

Japanese control of the sea lanes, Gen. MacArthur said, is impeded only by American submarine activities "which are not to be discounted."

Throughout his statement, Gen. MacArthur emphasized the importance of land-based aviation in winning the Pacific war.

London—The Berlin radio today quoted Japanese Major-General Sato as saying that Japanese land and air forces are planning a blow against the American continent.

Consider Reflecting of The Christian Faith

The members and friends of Lower Bucks County Men's Christian Fellowship League met in Bristol Methodist Church, Monday evening. The annual banquet was cancelled due to present conditions.

The annual report was read by the president, Raymond Dewees, Newportville, who explained the many churches which are members of the League having individual discouragements due to the call of many young men to the army; also the long working hours of men in defense work. He stressed that even with added strain of days to come, the League will still hold monthly meetings.

Howard Smoyer, chairman of the executive board, presented the officers for the new year: Raymond Dewees, president; James Harris, vice-president; Elwood Dyer, treasurer; Ralston Hedrick, secretary.

A period of silent prayer was observed in honor of the many members of the League who are in the service. The Rev. Arthur D. Sargis, Edgington, closed this period with prayer.

The speaker of the evening, the Rev. Howard P. Metcher, moderator of the Philadelphia Presbytery North, used as his theme, "How do we reflect our Christian Faith?" He referred to the headlights of automobiles. "These crystals reflect the glare of headlights only when the automobiles approach from one direction. We as Christians must so live that we reflect our faith in all directions." He explained that there should be no doubt in Christian faith, that "we should have an assured confidence in all the projects we undertake." He emphasized the League theme "Go, Glow, Grow" for Christ.

The Rev. Charles Waller, Morrisville, and the Rev. Samuel Gaskell, Tullytown, took part in the program. Mrs. Howard Smoyer was the pianist, and Ralston Hedrick led the group singing.

After the meeting the group was entertained by "The Methodist Minstrel Maids."

The group then partook of refreshments served by men of the League.

CONSUMER SAVINGS

Two premises are responsible for predictions of a postwar business boom: That when the war ends there will be an enormous accumulated demand for all sorts of goods whose production has been halted, and that there will be accumulated purchasing power to make this demand effective.

The first premise is incontrovertible, and there is good evidence to support the validity of the second, notably in the quarter analysis of the volume and composition of savings in the United States that has been issued by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The survey, covering the final three months of 1942, revealed that the public is holding an extremely large part of its increased income in cash on hand and in checking accounts.

During the period covered, the commission found, the American public's savings were the greatest in history. Cash holdings and checking account deposits were increased to $4,600,000,000. Another record was established in the ratio of savings in currency and demand deposits to income, after taxes. In addition, purchases of government bonds by individuals amounted to $3,300,000,000. At the same time the people practiced another form of saving by reducing individual indebtedness. The SEC estimated that debts, other than mortgages were reduced by approximately $2,800,000,000 during 1942.

It can be expected that these savings will be increased as the war-induced prosperity continues, barring new income tax rates which would be all but confiscatory. With savings thus mounting, it is easy to say that after the war consumers will have sufficient funds at hand to insure a business boom. Prudence should counsel the nation to watch those savings continually because they are a threat of disastrous inflation if they should ever be poured into a dwindling market. The pressure on prices would, in that case, become almost irresistible.

HOO KNOWS HOW

There's one United Nations observer watching the American forces in North Africa whose visit should not pass without mention. The observer is Maj. Gen. Hoo Hsien-chung, who at 38 is the youngest general of Chiang Kai-shek's armies.

General Hoo went to Africa to watch American tanks in action. General Hoo has a personal and expert interest in tanks because he commanded the Chinese tank force which inflicted the first defeat in open warfare on the Japanese in Kiangsu province in 1937.

It has not been revealed how many tanks the Chinese army has left—or if it has any at all. But it is quite apparent that if a Chinese tank expert goes all the way to Africa to see American tanks in battle, it means that the Chinese tank expert is counting on using American tanks in battle himself some day.

It is a libel to say that federal officials never reach definite conclusions. They now declare that if no food shortage existed there would be more to eat.

A feature of the fighting in Tunisia that is unique is that no reporter has described the Americans as fighting in foxholes.

Rommel's style is being cramped because there is no new 15-mile stretch of terrain open to him.

The Great Game of ronnics

and which conduct extensive operations in all parts of the world.

IN BRIEF, what the CIO proposed was to wrest from the army and navy traditional control of their great fleets and substitute a system composed of a multitude of "tri-party bodies," dominated by labor and the Government. One has only to consider the cumbersome nature of such a setup and the enormous confusion which would follow to understand what would happen. In effect, it is a proposal for losing the war.

In the end, it would give the CIO maritime unions control over all shipping. It would enable them to bottle up the country. It certainly would place the future of the war in the hands of the labor union leaders, raising them to a position of extraordinary power.

SO MUCH for the effect of the proposals—now as to their source. They were sponsored before the Truman Senate committee and the WSA by a group of CIO Maritime Union leaders, chief of whom was Mr. Harry Bridges. Mr. Bridges is the notorious Pacific Coast labor leader who, after years of litigation, was finally indicted as an undesirable alien, a member of the Communist party and declared not entitled to remain in this country. Held guilty by the court, he was ordered deported and has appealed the case. Yet here he is in Washington making to a Senate committee and the great War Shipping Administration proposals which literally would cripple our armed services in the midst of the greatest war in history.

IT IS also interesting to note that the Bridges communication was concurred in by Mr. Phillip Murray, head of the CIO. Mr. Murray is on intimate terms with the President and a frequent White House visitor. It is a rare day on which in some form or other Mr. Murray's press agents do not parade his patriotism or he does not land the magnificent way in which organized labor is supporting the war effort. This, however, has not prevented him from using the war to extend the power of his union in every possible way. It did not prevent him from supporting last year the strike position of his enemy, Mr. John L. Lewis. It did not prevent him from scuttling the President's National Labor Mediation Board, of which he was a member. And it does not now prevent him from endorsing the radical and ruinous scheme advanced by the Communist Mr. Bridges and his friends, who are quite the most dangerous as well as the smartest labor leaders we have. The truth is that this "tri-party body" idea which Mr. Bridges and his partners tried to force on the WSA is the CIO objective for industry generally. But this is the first time the demands have been made in writing—and put on the record.

THE "LABOR" management, government" combination has a fair sound, but it is wholly false. In reality it means labor control, as practical political consideration inevitably force government co-operation with labor as against management. Certainly, that has been the record in this Administration and that assuredly would have followed in our vast and vital shipping activities had the Bridges proposals gone through. Few things more disastrous to the national interests at this time can be conceived and it is greatly to the credit of the WSA that it made no effort to conciliate or compromise. In its reply, transmitted to the Truman committee, the WSA literally shot the proposal full of holes. It said "No" in a clear, strong voice. There are Government agencies which would not have done so and the clarity and force of the WSA decision were fine. However, its full benefit will be lost if the people as a whole fail to understand what these CIO radicals are really up to. Considering his position the effrontery of Mr. Bridges in making these proposals is exceeded only by their shocking character.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James E. Gaffey)

Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

O God, who art all things to all men, we pray today for those who are depressed in spirit; for those who are sorrowing because of separation from loved ones; for those who are bearing burdens of sorrow because of bereavement; for those whose minds are filled with confusion, doubt and fear because of world conditions. May thy spirit strengthen them and enable them to live in the present and look forward to the future with confidence and strength, depending on thee for all things and believing implicitly in thy providence. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

HOME-MAKERS URGED TO CHECK SUPPLIES
FOR CANNING SEASONBy Mrs. Katherine G. Moon
(Home Economics Representative)

It is not too early to begin planning for the coming canning season.

It will be wise to check carefully the canning equipment on hand. Is the equipment in good condition and ready to use? Will you have the number of jars and rubbers you are going to need? If it is necessary to replenish your stock, buy only what you need to fill the family requirements but no more than you need.

This year jars are being made in pint, quart, two-quart, and gallon sizes. Half-pint and wide-mouth jars will not be manufactured for the duration.

A two-piece glass and metal cover has appeared in the stores to replace the one-piece zinc mason cover. The glass lid has a rubber which is placed on the lid and not on the jar. A lacquered or black plate metal screw band holds the lid in place during processing. Because this type of metal will rust, it is suggested that the band be removed 24 hours after the jar has been processed and cooled.

Glass covers and some two piece metal covers with a composition rubber seal are available. Some stores may stock a smaller metal cover with a composition rubber seal for use on small-mouth glass jars, such as those used for coffee.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

"Yankee Doodle Dandy," which opened at the Grand Theatre last night, brings to the screen another Warner Bros. life story in film. It is the outstanding story of the career of George M. Cohan and one of the most thrilling films ever made. It is thrilling for many reasons but its timely patriotism is the most important one of all.

James Cagney portrays the role of George M. Cohan and it is by far his finest work. His impersonation of Cohan is wonderful because he doesn't allow himself to become a stickler for detail. He looks like Cagney, but talks, sings and acts like George M. Cohan himself.

"Yankee Doodle Dandy" is a great film from all angles. The production numbers are done to perfection.

The rest-pause that refreshes

Welcome in peace...

more welcome in war work

IN letter after letter from war plants and factories, managers write in to tell how important they consider Coca-Cola in providing energy-giving refreshment for workers... in helping output and morale. Of course, workers in war plants welcome a rest-pause... with ice-cold Coca-Cola to make it the pause that refreshes.

Ice-cold Coca-Cola quenches thirst. But it goes further to add pure, wholesome refreshment that you feel and enjoy. Made with a finished art, Coca-Cola has a taste all its own... a goodness you always welcome.

Popularity with war-workers has made Coca-Cola the symbol of the rest-pause. And remember: only The Coca-Cola Company produces Coca-Cola.

Letters from plant managers from coast to coast emphasize that the little moment for an ice-cold Coca-Cola means a lot to workers in war plants. It's a refreshing moment on the sunny side of things... a way to turn to refreshment without turning from work.

A breathing spell, a rest-pause and ice-cold Coca-Cola. Contentment comes when you connect with a Coke.

The best is always the better buy!
